The AHAC is comprised of 12 leaders from community and not-for-profit organizations actively involved in providing or promoting low- and moderate-income housing and community lending in Indiana and Michigan. The AHAC meets quarterly to review affordable housing needs across the two states and advise FHLBI on its efforts to carry out its housing finance and community investment mission. Additionally, the group provides recommendations to the FHLBI Board of Directors' regarding affordable housing credit products and program priorities.

"FHLBI values the Advisory Council's knowledge of affordable housing needs in our district and deeply appreciates their understanding of affordable housing finance, community economic development, and local community lending needs," said Cindy L. Konich, FHLBI President and CEO. "The Council's collective wisdom and experience truly enriches our ability to meet our affordable housing mission through our member financial institutions."
